This is the first of a new monthly series of free webinars that trainer and consultant Mike Anderson of Collision Advice is hosting throughout 2018 to help you easily research and find collision repair procedures.

This month’s “Learn to Research, Research to Learn” will focus on Toyota’s Technical Information System (TIS)

In these webinars, Mike will focus on a different automaker each month, walking you through the process of using that OEM’s specific website to locate the repair procedures, information and position statements you need! You will have an opportunity to text in questions during the live webinar.

Once your understand the automakers’ websites and begin using them, it becomes a much faster and easier process, and these webinars will help you do that!
